

Exploring

Exploring activities are what instructional designers do to investigate the shape of the design space in which they are working. Given what they understand about learners, stakeholders, and a situation, what kinds of problems should designers solve? What are the most important contributions they can offer?

Problem Framing
Using Task Analysis to Inform Instructional Design
Documenting Instructional Design Decisions

This content is provided to you freely by EdTech Books.

Access it online or download it at <https://edtechbooks.org/id/exploring>.

